You can gradually increase the number of party points by fighting monsters. *As you gather party points, you will automatically build the party, so you don't need to worry about losing members. *In the level where you have the most points, you will be able to increase the party points more easily than in previous levels. *In addition, during the battle, party members can get up to two items per hit. *If you leave a part with the character you own, at the party point system screen, you will be able to allocate the party points you had gathered. *RISE SYSTEM When you are attacked, use the Movement items to escape the enemies, and your life points will also go up. If you leave the battle, when your life points are almost full, your character will automatically rise. *If your life points are reduced to zero, you will be defeated and you will lose. *If your character rises, you can attack, use magic and exchange items. *After rising, all life points will be restored, and the character will go back to the normal state. *When you are defeated, you will be respawned at the last point where you fought.
