Hemolysis of erythrocytes by supernate of erythrosin B-stained leucocytes in the presence of calcium ions. Supernate of erythrosin B-stained leucocytes spontaneously hemolyzed human red cells. The hemolysis followed a dose-dependent pattern with the hemolysis rate reaching a maximum at a cell-to-nonspecific cell ratio of 15:1. The hemolysis was not associated with the formation of membrane ghosts. Cell-free medium at a final concentration of 0.18 M free calcium chloride (at pH 5.6) was capable of inhibiting the hemolysis. It was observed that the erythrosin B-stained leucocytes could be stained with erythrosin B at low pH of the supernate of fresh red cells in the presence of free calcium ions. The results suggest that erythrosin B staining leucocytes during blood staining is a source of hemolysis.Q: How to set a custom event handler in ClojureScript and observe it in Clojure? I want to bind a custom event to a button in React, in ClojureScript. This can be done, e.g. in plain Javascript with this: window.addEventListener("custom-event", function (e) { console.log("Message erceived!"); }); But I am having trouble translating this into ClojureScript. First of all, how would I set a custom event handler in ClojureScript? Secondly, how would I go about observing ti in Clojure? Many thanks!

A: You can use EventTarget.addEventListener: (defin add-event-handler [event-name handler] (set! (.-addEventListener js/document "custom-event" handler) true)) This returns the id of the added event listener, so you can unbind it like this: (add-event-handler "custom-event" #(console.log %)) Note that you need to manually do some things in clojurescript to make things work - e.g. make sure your event handler is a cljs function (not the keyword call syntax) and that your event name is the same
