Only two of these variables were significant: PALUX was higher in normal weight patients than in those with an abdominal aortic diameter higher than the 90th percentile (OR: 2.7; 95%CI: 1.3--6.3) and PAAR was higher in women with an abdominal aortic diameter higher than the 90th percentile than in women with normal abdominal aortic diameter (OR: 3.8; 95%CI: 1.3--10.5). Using multiple logistic regression analysis to adjust the significant variables in the univariate analysis, the association with abdominal aortic dilation was independent of the other variables, except for PAER in men. This association persisted when men were grouped together (only 2 men were underweight) or in women only (only one women was underweight). Discussion {#sec1-4} ========== High mortality in patients with an aortic diameter larger than the 90th percentile has been attributed, at least in part, to coronary artery disease.\[[@ref4]\] In this study, we found that aortic dilatation and aortic stenosis were, respectively, associated with CAD, heavy smoking, hypertension, glucose tolerance, hypertension, and heavy smoking. In the multiple logistic regression analysis, these variables were independent of the association with abdominal aortic dilatation. Although the association with CAD is probably under the influence of age, the majority of patients were older than 50 years in the CAD and abdominal aortic dilatation groups. The association with heavy smoking is likely to be underestimated. In the general population, cigarette smoking is more frequent in females than in males.\[[@ref9]\]

I have a html page with several links in it. When I am on one of these pages, if I click on a link and go to another page, the browser opens a new tab for the new page. Is there a way to close the active tab, when clicking on a link? Example: I am on page A in a tab. I click on a link to page B. I then click on another link and go to page C. The tab A is still open for page B. I want page A closed once I'm on page B, and vice versa. A: There's no short-term solution, but you can set window.close() to an empty string when you navigate to that page: $("#goHere").click(function(event) { location.replace("/"); window.close(); } Stroke is a leading cause of disability in the United States and most other Western societies (Danesh et al. (2004) Stroke 2005;36:535-46). Stroke is a term used to describe a group of clinical syndromes characterized by rapidly developing clinical signs of focal and global cerebral dysfunction. Stroke can be classified into either hemorrhagic stroke or ischemic stroke. Stroke may occur at any age, but affects the elderly most frequently. Total stroke incidence peaks in the 7th decade. An estimated 87,000 people experience a new or recurrent stroke each year (NHANES III, 1988-1994, Morris et al. (1999) N. Engl. J. Med. 341:1688-95). About 80% of the strokes are ischemic and 20% are hemorrh
