state". India's UN Ambassador Syed Akbaruddin tweeted a photograph of the passport document issued to the visiting couple with the line: "#NoVisaNoEntry." "@NorwayDept of Tourist gave visa to South Korean couple, who have refused to leave upon entry. Sam Gyurman refused to join a DPRK [North Korea] cultural centre," tweeted Mr. Akbaruddin, who is also the Indian Ambassador to the UN. North Korea has been criticised by the UN for its appalling human rights record. However, it has sought to internationalise the issue by using the high-profile visitor to defy the "most repressive system in the world", according to South Korea's ambassador. "The North does not recognise itself as a state. If it were one, I am sure it would not be allowed access to the UN. So, our position has been that access should be granted for South Koreans, whatever their wishes," ambassador Kang Kyung-wha told reporters on Saturday when asked if she understood the snub by the North. The visit, involving a number of South Korean artists, cultural performers and their families, was agreed as part of a confidence

I'm using VB.NET and am unsure of how to go about writing this as I'm not that familiar with the Excel Interop objects. Can anyone advise on how I should go about this? Thanks in advance! A: Yes, you can. I'll give you a basic example. This is just some code that I use to monitor one of my files in an Excel workbook, and then print the results. VB.NET: Public Sub printXls() Dim interop = New Microsoft.Office.Interop.Excel.Application() Dim wb As Workbook = interop.Workbooks.Open("C:\myExcelFile.xls") Dim sheet As Worksheet = wb.Sheets("Sheet1") 'This just prints out the values of the cells of the first cell of the first row Dim range1 As Excel.Range = wb.Sheets("Sheet1").Range("A1:A1") Dim myPrinter As New PrintDocument() myPrinter.PrinterSettings.PrinterName = "My Printer Name" Dim sheet1 As Worksheet = wb.Sheets("Sheet1") sheet1.Cells(1, 1).Value = "a" sheet1.Cells(2, 1).Value = "b" sheet1.Cells(3, 1).Value =

What's new:

The backyard of Faircroft is slightly overgrown and quiet; and when you hear the sound of visitors' shoes coming back to the house after checking in at the guesthouse or proper houses on the grounds, it means that any guest has had an enjoyable visit. It's a little place for those looking for refuge, and for those seeking a sliver of the yachting life. Faircroft is a 1930s house (although you'd need to raise your ticket to appropriate prices to believe that); it's an understated classic that has, over the past five years, developed over time. Though it was originally brought into being to be a yachtclub, what it is now is something else again. In fact, more than that: it's about so much more. It's one thing to sit in Faircroft and know that it's the headquarters of the exclusive cruise ship operator, Tall Ships, and yes, they've gone cruising on these ships, but they have a very particular reason to do so. It's quite another to be able to walk around the house and see the amazing lifestyle of cruising for those who seek it and provide it, from a simple and ordinary point of view. It's about retirement on the doldrums of Balmedie, where the guests make the most of the environment and are taken aback by it; how it's a little boat with all the comforts of a big ship, where there's a number of scheduled trips a day and only one captain. It's no ordinary park motorcoach charter, a service that offers additional vehicles to visitors, but visitors of a certain age. It's a generalization to say that the guests are no longer young; even at a glance, you can see many in their late 60s or 70s in rosiest of moods. That's the very least part of it; the yacht club mentality of all-inclusiveness is a part of why they come. You can walk up the stairs to the dining room and see yacht club members in their finery, with the dinner jackets and dinner dresses. The difference is that here they just get a chance to enjoy a twist on a cruise, where what's on offer here is not normally on offer anywhere else. That is the story of Faircroft. It started off as a dockside clubhouse, a place where modest yachts could be moored up and appropriate services were offered to guests, which changed into a vacation rental for those who wanted to

More Info »The present invention relates to a method and apparatus for monitoring and/or controlling the operation of a gas turbine and is particularly concerned with the measurement of the temperature of a column of air entering the combustor of the turbine so that the air temperature in the combustor can be maintained at or above an optimum level. It is known to monitor the temperature of the stream of air entering the combustor of a gas turbine by diverting a portion of the air stream to a temperature sensor mounted in the gas turbine combustor. A signal from the sensor is fed back to a control system which controls the air flow to the combustor to maintain the combustor temperature at a predetermined level. However, it has been found that the temperature of the air entering the combustor can vary as a result of variations in the ambient temperature of the outside air and the aerodynamic effect on the air flowing through the gas turbine. The variation in the air temperature and the aerodynamic effect result in a variation of combustor temperature which although of small magnitude, has a detrimental effect on the performance of the gas turbine. This effect becomes pronounced when the turbine is operated intermittently.

Q: Validate Google Sheets API Object I am using the Google Sheets API to gain access to a Google Sheet. I am using the following method to get a Google Sheet API object. SheetSheetUtil.getGoogleSheet API object I send it a json file, and it is working fine. However, is there a way to validate the returned object? I know there is the possibility to use json lint, but I am searching for a better solution. A: You can access the validate status of the Request in the Response. Here's a sample response that is returned by the Request. { "version": "v4", "query": { "parameters": { "key": { "location": "path", "description": "API key. Your API key identifies your project and provides you with API access, quota, and reports. Required unless you provide an OAuth 2.0 token.", "type": "string"
