and Islamic writing and folklore, and Å . His father was believed to have died fighting with the Afghans during the Gurkha War,.Garcia said he's not sure if his father's Alzheimer's caused his death, but that he should have been prepared for his father's inevitable decline. "It's not like you just start to flip a switch and things go," he said. "There should have been better planning and health-care decisions that could have been made a lot sooner." Holly Garcia said her mother does not suffer from Alzheimer's, but added that her father has taken good care of her. "He would take care of her if she was ever in need of help," she said. "He always kept the house in great condition." The family planned to visit Tucson and ask the coroners office for an explanation of its death ruling. "We just wanted to find out why, because it doesn't make sense. I don't think our dad should be dead. It doesn't add up," Garcia said. The family said they are praying for the agency's answers. "Our prayers, with this tragedy, are for the family," said Todd Stauffer, the medical examiner's assistant director of public affairs. "We're trying to really do the best that we can for this family and the office." Sgt. Pete Dugan, of the Tucson Police Department, said all the information they gathered to make their assessment was given to the family when they went to the son's house. "It's not a death, it's a call," Dugan said. "The family wasn't ready for it. What we've seen is that family realizes they didn't want to accept it." The family said they are grateful for the police support. "They did an outstanding job," Garcia said. "They have been very supportive of our family."Agonist-mediated reduction of NADP-isocitrate dehyd
