Commanding such massive vessels in the Nuclear Age was no easy task, and it was often considered to be beyond the ability of the human mind to conceive. Well, the early computing wave made it possible for the computer to handle the tactical situation like no other – and now the age of Digital War, has begun. Liu Chenglong, Class VI. Engineer. Capt. I.F.C For this land-bound man it would be like a first contact with giant life forms, unknown and unseen. For him it would be a new and challenging journey into the sea of digital worlds. You start out as a member of the Chinese Navy – a class VI. Engineer aboard a hulking super-heavy nuclear assault ship, the Guangzhou. Your mission is to command the ship and to keep it on course while you maintain and build the station's defenses – even when things start getting as crazy as they can get. In this game you will have to face the challenges of command under limited time and resources while working together with other crew members. At the same time you will have to ensure that the ship sails smoothly, and that the station remains fully operational. As the months and years pass by, you will continue to expand and improve the station's capabilities – as well as your own command abilities. The game is a huge, free tactical space strategy that allows you to play multiple campaigns ranging from 5 to 12 years long. In these years you will be commanded by a Class VI Engineer and his crew to expand, defend and maintain the station – while providing the best support to the fleet in the wider China/Korea conflict. Playing as the commander The player will command the entire main route of their voyage – from the loading area and the ship's control station to the defense/attack stations and the research areas. He will be able to freely move around the route and thus control and make changes to the station as he sees fit. The AI will take care of the station's defenses and will tend to ensure a smooth and uninterrupted progression of the voyage for the player. The expansion and construction will change in accordance with the player's actions and the required time until arrival – and will be communicated to you. These actions will include issuing orders to repair and maintain damaged modules, construct new modules and research new capabilities and characteristics. The more time and money the player c9d1549cdd

Over 100 pages of game concept art from the game Satellite Reign, including concept sketches, low resolution wire frames and digital rendering. There's even some concept images from the original project, Project A.Get the Art Book here! Get the Game here! Translated by Altrovarr 1.0 beta version The game that was born at last April is now being released for Steam. The game is very much ready, and has been taken to testers at last June. The release will be in Autumn, after the long wait. You can try the game now, with English version available, it can be downloaded from the page: Satellite Reign, has been released for last May, and has reached the milestone of 20,000 copies sold. It is therefore being translated to Chinese for distribution on Steam in China. This release has some new features, and some bug fixes. English-China version will be made available. Gameplay-wise, it is still the same great game you have known all these months. The only difference is the changed graphics language, and the Chinese names of the place in the game. We have implemented a new system, to have more downloads. Because of this, we want to thank for the support for the game for all these months. It has truly helped us, to make a great game. We want to thank the beta testers, who helped us to get the game ready for this release. Also the news pages of the game are, during this time, well read. The new version, on Steam, is: New game features: - New tutorial system. - New way to play the game. - Check-point feature, with full replay (like Football Manager). New improvements: - AI is able to manage now more resources. - Sidechannels system (increased economy efficiency). - New placing system (altruistic occupation system). - Extended view distance. - Airports loading screen and flight delay. - An alternative winning screen, with colored medals (compared to last version). - Improved AI AI. - Multiplier system

What's new:

. "IMPRANTS." The first season finale of RedSides, produced by PodcastOne, is now live on any podcast platform with the links below. We're pleased to announce that RedSides, our new WGN Radio series, will premiere on Wednesday, March 27 at 10:00pm. Grab your tickets and check us out on your favorite podcast platform. This Friday, March 15 at 9:00pm EST, join us for the special (nearly) episode of RedSides powered by WGN Radio. In what many are calling an episode in the history of podcasting, WGN Radio's own Neal Resnick will host our first weekly discussion of the Blago, Ryan, and Emanuel storylines from the G-File…and beyond. We'd like to thank Neal for sharing his knowledge of Chicago politics, former WGN radio host Steve Rosen for filling in some gaps about who Governor Blago and Kris Watson are in our nation's capital, and Zuri Johnson for his insights about President

Obama's response to his administration's ethics probe. We'd also like to thank Abe Odessky & Joe Sikora for putting on an exclusive music performance from Chicago band Killer Pizza. "URB-E," their debut single, was recently included in NPR's "Year-end Top Songs" list. "We've got some exciting things on the horizon for you," says Neal, "so I'm hoping that you're up for this one." Trivia Time! Name which journalist is this: Most of us didn't know. Let's take a minute to have a little fun. According to the RFT's new unofficial rating system, at press time, Karen DeLaX couldn't possibly be right. That should tell you a lot! Put up or shut up, RFT! We're open for your comments on the RFT's new rating system. So far, just a few words of praise. That's much better than "BS! WGN affiliate radio station W262CF." We're the only station on the radio right now that has a rating at all. Did you know that you can listen to RedSides through WGN

Your Journey: Being able to play some of the best adventures in your life or create new ones in this sandbox RPG awaits you. In the Pocket Edition of this universe, you can play endless hours of the game with your friends through local co-op support. Play it how you want: The first journey is when you decide to start your adventure. As you have seen from the original game, there are over 40 different character classes in the game, each with their own customizations. They can learn up to six skills by leveling up, and they can equip weapon and armor upgrades from the shop at the Fort. Their builds are their own unique flavor. You can even create your own unique classes! Further Journeys: This Pocket Edition of the game features all content from the original game. The other three Journeys will also be available for download. Player's Story: Within the storyline, you will follow the path of four heroes, each representing the four elements of Earth, Fire, Water, and Air. Each of them, on their own, will lead you through their unique story, and each of them will also be involved with the other three. The World that you will become a part of, however, is where the adventure begins. When you reach the end of the first Journey, you have the opportunity to play one of the other three Journeys. Each Journey features a completely different storyline. There will be 12 total. We are taking players on a journey through time. Endless Possibilities: This version of the game allows players to mix and match characters, skills, and equipment to create their own unique combinations and play styles. Gods, Heroes, Legends: In this game, you will meet a lot of Gods and Legends from four different cultures, each representing a different elemental myth. They will show you their own paths through the seven Journeys, teach you different cultures and traditions, and offer you their help. Development: Being an indie game, the Pocket Edition of Earthbound did not have a large budget for marketing. As a result, while we were able to maintain the quality that we wanted to, the budget for continuing the development was limited. Nevertheless, we worked closely with fans and have been actively going around the world with the game and spending much time and effort answering fans' questions and handling different issues and concerns. We are happy to share that the game
