Why choose the Adobe Photoshop Elements Editor and not Photoshop? Unlike Photoshop, Photoshop Elements has only three editions: Home & Hobby, Home & Business, and Premier. There are three main reasons why people choose one over the other: Adobe Photoshop Elements is easier to use. It has a very user friendly interface. You will find it much easier to edit your photos with the use of Photoshop Elements. Not every Photoshop user is going to buy the entire Photoshop suite. Thus, they may choose Photoshop Elements over the full version. Photoshop has advanced features that aren't available in Photoshop Elements. However, you can always upgrade Photoshop Elements to get the advanced features. How does the Adobe Photoshop Elements Editor work? The Adobe Photoshop Elements Editor is a streamlined, simplified version of the professional Adobe Photoshop software. It allows you to open, view, edit, and save your photos and other media files. With Photoshop Elements, you get access to most of the features of Photoshop CS6 or later. Photoshop Elements Editor comes with a wide range of editing tools that will allow you to do many types of photo editing. It is best suited for hobbyist photographers and amateur graphic designers. Most photo editing tools in Photoshop Elements are organized into the following tabs: • Photo Bin • Toolbox • Image Layers • Filters • Adjustment Layers • Adjustment Layers • Layers panel • Levels • Curves • Spacing • Mask • Paths • Channels • Color • Adjustments • Adjustment Layers • Brush • Paint Bucket • History • History • Retouch tools • History • Mask • Paths • Adjustments • Layers • Painting • Adjustment layers • Adjustment layer • Adjustment layer • Adjustment layer • Adjustment layer •

Q: REPLACE INTO based on previous row value? I want to add a new column to my table and it should consist of the previous value of my current row plus a constant, so basically it should be like: Value NewColumn 10 10 15 15 20 25 The table is used for logging memory usage, so this value should be persistent. I am thinking something like a sequence counter, but this would use up additional space since it needs to store a new number for each row instead of just incrementing the one in the previous row. Any suggestions? A: A simple calculation - you can work with a column (in this case a date):
`SELECT col1, col2, IF(@prev + @val > @target, @val - @prev, @val) AS newcol
FROM (SELECT @prev:= 0, @val:= 0, @target:= @val + @value UNION ALL SELECT @prev, @val, @target FROM t) AS tmp` Example on sqlfiddle. Note that this will fail if row values exceed the column value range of the column type. You can extend it with a typecast to adjust for that. Q: How to use SendKeys.Send in a different thread than the main thread? I'm trying to send a key combination in a different thread than the UI thread so that it doesn't interrupt the UI and cause it to be unresponsive. I can see how to do this in the main thread, such as the example here:
`Process.GetCurrentProcess().Threads .OfType() .FirstOrDefault(x => x.ProcessID == id_of_my_process) .SendKeys.Send("{TAB}");` But what is the proper way to send something from a different thread? So far I've only found this but it doesn't explain how to do what I'm trying to do. A: You could use a method defined in `System.Windows.Forms.NativeMethods.SendKeys`. Use it like this: // Get

Q: How to extract ZIP files from an Access DB I have an Access DB with a table which contains ZIP files. I have written a macro that loads it, but it always says "File is in use" despite the fact that the file is not being used. Do I need to close a previous load of the file and start it over? A: I'm guessing your macro routine is failing because you tried to append the new zip file to the open file. Try this: `CurrentDb.Execute "ALTER TABLE MyTable ADD ZIPFile VARCHAR(255) DEFAULT "" Set fld = CurrentDb.OpenRecordset("MyTable") fld.AddNew 'add a new row for the zip file fld!FileName = "C:\users\carl\desktop\test.zip" fld.Update 'mark the row as updateable fld.Close 'close the open file fld.LockType = dbLockingTypeIfMaintainDbLocking'set the lock type CurrentDb.Execute "ALTER TABLE MyTable SET LOCKBY = "" fld.Save 'save the updates fld.Close 'close the open file` I've talked about the F-117 with my husband but he's not into the spy angle. I think the closest I've come is when the F-117 was in my mind, I thought it was an old B17 converted into an airplane. The Airshow was an easy sell because you can get a good deal if you want to see them open up the hangar and
