Motion capture cameras track the motion of 22 players, capturing detailed movements of players' hips, shoulders and knees. Players' movements - from stretching, diving and jumping, to speeding up their pace of play and tackling with full force - are captured by the cameras and translated directly into gameplay. Players will feel more responsive and agile on the pitch, as the game will react to their every move. They will be able to shift, dribble and accelerate with increased speed and precision. FIFA 22 will also use player likeness and body build data from FIFA 19 for more realistic animations and a greater variety of player appearances.
