So why not when it comes to understanding how your best friend will take care of their health and wellness? "Secret Squirrels" are the warriors in the workplace, our allies, the people who are always looking for that extra edge. These are the people who will never let you know that they are testing out new products. They are always trying a new workout routine. They are always searching for the best deals. And they can be your biggest supporter at work, introducing you to someone who would otherwise not have met you. They may not tell you about their health crisis, but they will tell you why it's "good to get healthy." You're sure to find a common ground, and they'll teach you, and you'll teach them! Last year, a group of Los Angeles firefighters was surprised to learn about the health benefits of drinking coffee. The firefighters had been told by their doctor to cut back on coffee due to the fact that they were lactose intolerant, but not their friends. They formed the "Coffee and Caring" group, and their Facebook page has 2,500 members who meet monthly to share recipes and menu ideas and play games to raise money for local charity organizations. A secret squirrel can help keep you healthy and motivated. These are five health tips they can share with you. 1. Exercise The secret squirrels
