the two photos look quite similar to me. looking at the crowd shots on the wirral club website, most of the back seats are in the town end, with hardly any in the terrace, so the first photo would be the town end. are there any signs of airbus here? a couple of photos on the site: actually, i think it looks more like a leeds rhinos game to me. rhinos have generally struggled with crowds in yorkshire but there was no great difference to be seen in the rhinos v. st marys, and this is a fantastic ground. i know that leeds rugby are expanding but it doesnt look like this is one of the places they want to do it. no more airbus after all. AFC Liverpool merged in August with A.N. Other side and became Liverpool FC A. Other side. former airbus manager and current secretary of A. Other side, player Alan Glover, will take over from his former comrade Joey Jones. the match summary should be straightforward. wanderers are hovering above the play-off places following a cup run. Celtic are struggling at the wrong end of the table but are in no danger of going down. the hand controller is plastic, while the surface of the stick is smooth and matte, complete with rubber track guides that feel like they can take a fair bit of punishment. the red led indicator lights are also metal, and fit the stick. the tca kit also includes a usb cable that plugs into the controller to charge it. one of the concerns about replicas is that they tend to be more of a novelty, than a practical use. not this one. its a good solid sidestick, and one that will be easy to master. the only downside is that the cable comes with only one usb port, so you will need a 2.0/3.0 usb hub to connect your computer to it. again, its a minor inconvenience, and one that isnt any more or less than purchasing a usb cable for the base controller.
