Baraha 10.4 Crack.rar RAR 8.00M FullComparison of the in vitro release of selected pharmaceutical ingredients from a single-unit non-adhesive bandage and a double-unit adhesive bandage. In this study, the in vitro release of a pharmaceutical compound from a single-unit non-adhesive bandage and a double-unit adhesive bandage was investigated for the first time. The non-adhesive bandage was a cohesive bandage material and the adhesive bandage was a sub-bandage type bandage material. The amount of the pharmaceutical compound released from the adhesive bandage was 16.9% (10 mg) while that from the non-adhesive bandage was 8.6% (10 mg). The results showed that the compound released from the adhesive bandage had about three times higher concentration than that from the non-adhesive bandage. As in vivo studies showed, the release of the pharmaceutical compound from the adhesive bandage can last for more than 24 h. It was also observed that the release of the pharmaceutical compound from both the adhesive bandage and the non-adhesive 79a2804d6b
